where can i find platforms that talk about god in a very real way

Here are some online platforms and communities where people discuss God, faith, spirituality, and religion in a very raw, real, and often unfiltered way (not polished church-talk). These range from deeply thoughtful to extremely blunt and skeptical:

Christian-Focused but Very Real/Raw

- r/TrueChristian (Reddit) – Strict rules, but people share real struggles, doubts, sin, mental health + faith.
- r/Christianity (Reddit) – Huge, very mixed—everything from devout to ex-Christians venting. You'll see unfiltered pain and questions.
- r/Exvangelical & r/Deconstruction (Reddit) – People working through trauma, doubt, and faith in brutally honest ways.
- The Naked Bible Podcast (by Michael Heiser, RIP) and his YouTube channel – Academic but treats the Bible like it's weird and ancient, not sanitized.
- The Bible Project YouTube/Podcast – Surprisingly deep and honest about the messy parts of Scripture while staying reverent.
- The Liturgists Podcast (Mike McHargue & Science Mike + guests) – Explores God from progressive, doubting, LGBTQ-affirming, science-friendly angles. Very raw emotions.

Broad Spirituality / "God but make it real"

- r/spirituality (Reddit) – Wild mix: mystics, ex-religious, psychonauts, agnostics all talking about direct experiences of "God" or the divine.
- Aubrey Marcus Podcast – Interviews spiritual teachers, shamans, ex-military, etc., talking about God/reality in very direct, often psychedelic-influenced ways.
- Duncan Trussell Family Hour Podcast – Comedian + spiritual seekers. Talks about God like a psychedelic philosopher who swears a lot.
- Almost Heretical (Nate & Shelby) – Former pastors deconstructing traditional Christianity with zero sugar-coating.

More Intellectual but Still Real

- Lord of Spirits (Fr. Stephen De Young & Fr. Andrew Stephen Damick) – Eastern Orthodox priests talking about angels, demons, ancient worldview. Super nerdy but treats the supernatural as real as gravity.

- The Symbolic World (Jonathan Pageau) YouTube – Deep symbolic takes on God and meaning, very little sentimentality.
- Paul VanderKlay YouTube – Pastor who live-streams reactions to Jordan Peterson, Pageau, etc. The comment section is a bizarrely alive community of people wrestling with God in real time.

Anonymous & Extremely Raw

- 4chan's /x/ (paranormal) board – Occasionally you'll find long threads of anons describing mystical or demonic experiences with zero filter. Take with tons of salt, but it's "real" in the way a fever dream is real.
- Godlike Productions forum – Conspiracy + spirituality mash-up. Again, very unfiltered, often crazy, but people post about direct experiences.

X (Twitter) Accounts Worth Following for Real Talk about God

- @frandrew – Orthodox priest, zero chill, memes + theology.
- @PaulVanderKlay – The YouTube guy above.
- @PageauJonathan
- @VigilantChristian (if you want fire-and-brimstone raw)
- @exvangelical_ accounts and the whole #exvangelical hashtag

If you tell me what flavor you're looking for (doubting Christian, mystical, intellectual, angry ex-believer, traditional but blunt, etc.), I can narrow it down way more.
